NOTICE TO ELECTION OFFICERS

The law requires that a person made or found to have reached the age of twenty-one years and have lived in Kentucky one year, in the county six months, and in the voting precinct at least sixty days just before the election.

No person other than election officers, challengers, and inspectors duly appointed may be allowed to remain within fifty feet of the polls longer than necessary to cast his ballot.

No person may be permitted to take an unmarked ballot out of the polling room. A ballot delivered to a voter must be deposited in the ballot box or returned to the clerk.

No person may vote on the table except such persons who have first been duly sworn and who state that they are illiterate, or blind, or disabled. Unless the oath is taken they are required to vote in the secrecy of the booth. Allow no one to vote on the table whom you know to be able to read.

No person who sells his vote is subject to a penalty of not less than $50 nor more than $500 and also loses the right to vote in all other elections. The penalty is the same on the one who buys the vote.

Election officers are forbidden by law to go into or around the election booths while any voter or voters are in such booths.

Election officers should read the full instructions sent them by the county clerk and follow the instructions.

NORRIS FOR ROOSEVELT

"Right now the two great issues before the country are holding company legislation and taxing great wealth," Senator George W. Norris, Republican of Nebraska, told the Associated Press on his 71st birthday last week. "This holding company fight would not have been possible 10 years ago. It is something so absolutely right that it must win and the biggest help is that we have President Roosevelt. We never can have a real democracy and a real civilization as long as the holding companies dominate, not only in the electric field but in every other."

To a New York Times interviewer the Nebraska Independent, of whom it has been said that "he legislates for posterity rather than for a political clientele," declared:

"President Roosevelt has tried to do right. He has met the depression bravely; he has shown great courage. There were no precedents to guide him when he confronted a condition such as no other president ever faced. Sometimes he did not know what to do but he did the best he knew how."

He has kept trying and he has never given up. That means a lot to a people's spirit.

"In my judgment, he is absolutely sincere. He means to do the right thing and to help the under dog. His sympathies are with the common man. That's what I like about him."

"I can discuss his administration objectively. For one thing, I owe him nothing and I can be free. If the rest of his program goes through top of the legislation we have passed since March of 1933—the last two years will have produced more social legislation for the common man than any two since I came to Washington in 1903."

The veteran legislator, who never wears glasses, works much harder and longer than many of his colleagues and looks 25 years less than his real age, recounted "a few of the great accomplishments under Franklin D. Roosevelt."

"The TVA system will mean untold happiness to millions on farms and in cities too. You can't realize it until you get up before dawn and perform the variety of the day's work by hand. You cannot imagine what low cost of electricity will mean to people who must scrape for every penny. Distribution of electricity to homes now using oil lamps and wood stoves, and cheap power to small factories will revolutionize living conditions among the people of the United States."

"The farmer's honest rates have been cut in half. A few hundred dollars in savings may not sound much for some folks; but to a farmer forced close to the ragged edge then mortgaged charges and low prices of farm products. It means the difference between getting by and going under. It is the difference between living and existing."

"Break the New Deal down and you begin to see its practical, human, intelligent tenets."

"Yes," he concluded, with a bright smile. "I am for Roosevelt. There is a better compelling reason. I see no body in either party who is so nearly right as he is or who offers so worth while a program as he does. If I am true to my conscience, and to the things I have fought for, I must say that."

Chandler Addresses Voters

To what was perhaps the largest political gathering ever witnessed in West Liberty, Lieutenant Governor A. H. (Happy) Chandler delivered one of his characteristic campaign speeches from the rostrum of the main court room here on Monday of this week. Only a small part of the audience could get into the courthouse, but the speaker came equipped to amplify his voice to those outside, where his well rounded sentences were applauded in unison with the enthusiastic reception by the people who could look into the face and see the motions of the speaker.

Mr. Chandler discussed many different state problems. Among the first he paid his respects to the sales tax which he has fought since it was first advanced and advocated by Governor Patton. He spoke about the Kentucky-made whisky which the state administration was afraid to tax 50 cents on the gallon and which was shipped into Pennsylvania where it was promptly taxed 82 per gallon and the sales tax of that state repealed.

Mr. Chandler spoke of the assessment levied on workers for the highway department for the benefit of a fund to elect Governor Patton's choice to succeed himself as governor of Kentucky. Mr. Chandler spoke of the workers on the highway games. He said their remuneration varied from perhaps about $800 to $1000 a year. Many of these men have wives and children. They are engaged in making an honorable living for them. The task is hard enough at best but almost impossible under the conditions created by Ruby. Mr. Chandler advised these men to pay the tribute demanded of them rather than lose their jobs. "But know this, next year, when I am governor, you will neither have to pay a sales tax nor contribute your money for any man's election to any office."

Mr. Chandler spoke about the long fight for a primary and how he preserved or rather restored, to Kentucky a right we had too long taken for granted and lost. He spoke of the race for a "run-off" primary and declared that the people of the state, accepting the challenge, had championed the bill and are running off with the first primary.

H. L. GENTRY HEADS NEW FIRM

Announcement of a new Jackson organization to be known as the Utility & Industrial Supply Co. which main offices at 212 W. Michigan ave., was made Thursday when articles of incorporation were filed at the county clerk's office.

This Means Everybody In Your County

It Is Concerning Your State Fair and What It Means To You and Your County

Your county excels in certain distinctive particulars which might be of special interest to the thousands of people in attendance at your State Fair in Louisville, week of September 9-14.

It is the great show window for displaying Kentucky's leading products to the outside world, and its officials have planned this year the greatest opportunity in the history of the Fair to display its products in the various exhibit departments, or in the form of a special display booth in the mammoth Merchants and Manufacturers Building.

Your county might excel in certain types of cattle, horses, sheep, hogs, poultry, antiques, needlework, products of the garden, dairy, orchard, or in some other way. Or, you might have a beautiful girl to represent it in the Fair's State-wide Beauty Contest, or a Band or Drum and Trumpet Corps, an athletic team or a boys and girls club. Whatever it may be, get into touch with the Kentucky State Fair at once, for it is your Fair—as much for you as for any other part of your state.

Your Commissioner of Agriculture, Eugene Flowers, and State Fair Secretary, Garth K. Ferguson, who, like Mr. Flowers, knows so well the needs of agriculture in Kentucky, have so planned the Fair's program this year as to make the Fair of the greatest good to the greatest number in your State, and they earnestly ask you to do your part.

Eugene Flowers, Commissioner of Agriculture

MOORE FARMS—LESS VALUE

Comparison of the number of farms acreage, and value in Morgan county in 1935 and in 1930 is contained in preliminary tabulation of reports from the 1935 census of agriculture for Kentucky, released by the bureau of the census, and just received by the Louisville district office of the department of commerce.

The report shows that in this county in 1935 there are 3130 farms as compared with 2623 in 1930; number of acres in these farms in 1935 is 208,429 compared with 208,033 in 1930. Value of farms in this county in 1935 is given as $3,118,952 compared with $1,213,265 in 1930.

For the entire state of Kentucky the 1935 census shows 278,298 farms as compared with 246,199 farms in 1930, containing 20,838,510 acres in 1935 as against 19,927,286 acres in 1930. The value of Kentucky farms in 1935 had decreased to $620,088,700 as compared with a valuation of $874,448,952 in 1930.

TO VOTERS OF MORGAN COUNTY

A certain candidate for representative in Morgan county has been circulating the report that I am not a candidate and to others he has said I am just going to run a few days and come off. I think this is unfair tactics. I have been in every section of this county and from reports I have, I am going to win this nomination.

Don't be misled by any person telling that I am not a candidate. I have my faults, plenty of them, but I have never been accused of dishonesty or being a liar, so far as I have ever heard.

You have signally honored me heretofore, and I believe the Democracy of this county is going to do it again.

Vinson on Radio

Congressman Fred M. Vinson came home from Washington last Friday to take an active part in the Democratic primary race for governor. In the half hour radio address he gave to the voters Mr. Vinson spoke mostly on the national political situation. The radio state issue discussed was the social security program, which has been attacked in the north. Mr. Vinson said that his committee for governor is Thomas S. Riley, but disclaimed any desire to influence the choice of a candidate to whom they would then choose. Mr. Vinson continued in other radio addresses to come and see him. The address was an excellent one from a party standpoint and the kindly spirit could be more prevailingly among the candidates. Mr. Vinson's statement any damage to their cause.

JUDGE HENNESSEY TO SPEAK

Judge Matt Hennessey, commonwealth's attorney of Marshall, Ky., will address the citizens of Morgan county at West Liberty, Ky., at two o'clock p.m. on Saturday, July 27, in behalf of the candidacy of Thomas S. Riley for governor. He will discuss:

First: The facts about the private and public life of Tom Riley.

Second: What he stands for in this campaign.

Third: What his official acts have meant to Morgan county.

Fourth: What his election means to Kentucky. Adv.

LIQUOR STILL LAWLESS

The liquor has been legalized, it is still lawless. That is the gist of the conclusions to be drawn from Attorney General Cummings' report that convictions for liquor-law violations are increasing rapidly and threaten to over crowd federal prisons. Convictions, said Cummings, "merely doubled in the last year, probably due to stricter enforcement"; there were 1214 liquor law prisoners in the last fiscal period, compared with 2208 in the previous twelve months.

Ordinary observation hardly bears out the theory that there is no "stricter enforcement," and the fact that the federal liquor-law enforcing force has been reduced does not indicate it. An impartial survey would probably disclose that bootlegging is increasing much faster than convictions, and that a good share of the revenue the government ought to get from the liquor trade is leaking away.

The remedy, that repentance offered during prohibition times is not suggested by the attorney general; if the law is not obeyed, do away with the law.—Los Angeles (Haff) Times.

SEEN and HEARD around the National Capital

By CARTER FIELD

Washington.—The fact that Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland is so far off the Roosevelt reservation is of far more political significance than most persons not interested in hearing electoral vote tallies realize.

The Maryland senator had just been successfully called off in his Virgin Islands inquiry, and is now with Secretary of the Interior Ickes more or less muzzled, but that is not important, not to anyone who knows Tydings, and Maryland. Washington opinion about that particular row is that the people Tydings wanted to protect will be protected from the wrath of Ickes. In return for Tydings' piling down on his public utterances.

Maryland has only eight electoral votes, but it is interesting because the state always goes Democratic in years when the Democrats win nationally, and is as independent as the proverbial hog on ice at all times.

For example, in a Democratic sweep, in 1931, Maryland elected a Republican governor, the third since the Civil War. And each of the others served only one term. Yet at the same election, the state elected six Democratic members of the house, and a Democratic senator.

To make the situation clear, it should be understood that there were three or four important reasons why Albert C. Ritchie, the Democratic candidate for a fifth term, was not re-elected. He had angered the eastern shore section of the state by trying to prosecute leaders of a lynching mob. He was held responsible, probably unjustly, for the collapse of several important banks. And there was a good deal of sentiment against continuing the same man in office so long. No other governor of Maryland had ever been re-elected once. He was seeking a fifth term.

But it is interesting to note that the one man who was sure Ritchie could not be re-elected, and who as a result tried to get him to run for senator—which would seem at least to indicate the opposition was not personal—was Senator Tydings.

He's Top Dog in Maryland

Tydings very early in the game picked George L. Radcliffe for the Democratic nomination for governor. Later, on a compromise, Radcliffe ran for senator and was elected.

All of which means that Tydings is by way of being the top dog in Democratic politics in Maryland at the moment. Moreover, he is not worried about the immediate future, for he does not come up for re-election until 1938, two years after the Presidential election. And Maryland has a habit of always going Democratic in off years.

It so happens that Maryland is almost the most conservative state in the Union. Five of her six districts—all except that sixth—always send rather conservative men to the house. She once elected a practically unknown figure, Senator Joseph I. France, to the upper house because she was voting against a man she regarded as a radical—David J. Lewis. The chief charge against Lewis was that he was socially inclined—he had fathered the parcel post bill.

Maryland, a border state, always went Democratic in national elections until the free silver issue. She voted for McKinley in 1896 and 1900, split her electoral vote in 1904, voted for Wilson in both 1912 and 1916, and then voted for Harding, Coolidge and Hoover.

There is little doubt that the state does not like the New Deal. If the election were held today, and any fairly unobjectionable Republican opposed Roosevelt, there is little doubt he would get Maryland's eight votes.

There is something ultra conservative about both Maryland and Virginia. It is rather interesting that Carter Glass, Henry F. Byrd, and Tydings are always found voting together. The other Maryland senator, Radcliffe, happens to be a close personal friend of Roosevelt, but, as pointed out, he was put in the senate by Tydings, and has yet to demonstrate either real power in the state or political sagacity.

Brings Up Borah

Talk of William E. Borah for the Republican nomination against Franklin D. Roosevelt next year is one of the most interesting political and economic developments since 1932. Not that there is actually very much of a possibility that the seventy-year-old senator will be nominated, but because of the various developments and speculations which surround the talk.

What it really means is that for the first time since the Republicans lost all but six states, in 1932, they are beginning to chirp up. They are beginning to think that there may be a possibility of winning in 1936. Until the last few weeks—in fact, right up to the tax message—they had been saying privately that 1936 was too soon to hope for; that 1940 would be their red letter day.

The whole psychology at the present moment is based on taxes. The American people are becoming tax conscious—federally as well as by counties and townships. When Clemens remarked to Woodrow Wilson that the average Frenchman would gladly die for his country, but he would not pay taxes to support it, he was very accurate. The average American cannot begin to think that it may be necessary to go out and die for one's country.

try on the battlefield, but it's tough to have to do without this or that or the other thing he wants, or his wife wants, just because taxes take so much of his total income.

Curiously enough this tax conscious ness, though it may have been in incubation for some time past, did not hatch out until the President sent his tax message to congress. It was discussion of the amounts the various levies would raise, on top of all the fuss about processing taxes making the cost of bread and bacon and shirts and underwear and what not higher, that started folks talking out loud. It was the realization that sooner or later it was old John Taxpayer, in the middle walks of life, who would have to foot the bill for all these New Deal experiments.

More About Taxes

You are going to hear a great deal more about taxes, now that critics of the New Deal have realized what is happening. Plenty of oil will be poured on the smoldering fires. Attention will be called to many taxes which most folks pay without realizing they are taxes. For example, the federal levy of six cents a pack on cigarettes. And one cent of each three for a letter is pure tax, levied for tax purposes. Attention will be directed to how much of the cost of a pound of ham or bacon is tax; that the cost of everything is boosted by the fact that the producers and merchants have to pay such high taxes.

Meanwhile Senator Borah is a wonderful bridge between the conservative and progressive Republican wings. He happens to be opposed to most of the New Deal ideas, and no one has hit out more strongly on what the Republicans had been hoping would be the issue—preserving the Constitution.

But talk about Borah serves a very important purpose—it distracts speculation about Herbert Hoover. And talk about Hoover is regarded by most Republicans as the high water mark of defeatism.

"You don't remember the chairman who wrecked your car," as one of them put it.

If the Republicans could be gotten enthusiastic about some one else, and give full vent to their opposition to Roosevelt, some other candidate, against whom there might not be much serious opposition, might easily be nominated—and elected. Some one preferably who would not arouse antipathy against himself.

Truth About Roosevelt

All sorts of weird stories are drifting back to Washington about President Roosevelt. Most of them relate to his alleged reactions to certain recent events. Particularly the Supreme court's NRA decision, and the tax message. An interesting point is that apparently all the stories have as their chief basis the way the President is alleged to have acted at press conferences.

The truth is nothing like as spectacular as the stories, but it is rather interesting. Being as the stories seem to center on the way Mr. Roosevelt acted at two press conferences, perhaps a brief summary of those two particular occasions would be worth while.

In the first, and most discussed, though actually less interesting one, the President met the newspaper men on Wednesday morning, following the decision by the high court of the NRA case on the previous Monday. Thus, he had nearly 48 hours in which to make up his mind what to say to the newspapers of the country.

Many stories have been printed, mostly by columnists who were not present, and got their information second-hand at best, though obviously more out of their own mental conceptions of how the President should have felt, that he was approaching the hysterical, etc.

The truth is that the President very carefully sent up a trial balloon, and planted the seeds of some excellent propaganda looking toward a constitutional amendment which would give congress the power to determine hours of labor and minimum wages in interstate commerce.

The very obvious took the same pleasure from his talk with the reporters that a crack radio-maker takes in putting the finishing touches on a job, or that a lawyer takes when he thinks of just the right touch to give a difficult case, or a golfer when he successfully calculates the precise roll to sink a 20-foot putt.

Did a Good Job

The other, and more interesting, press conference was shortly after his tax message. This was far different, and far more difficult. The President faced and parried with the newspaper men, because he had decided it was necessary to put over the idea that the White House had not changed its strategy in the middle of the play, but that two senators had entirely misunderstood him.

Roosevelt knew perfectly well, as he talked with more than a hundred fairly sharp newspaper men, that not a man in the room believed what he was saying. Every man there believed the senators had understood him correctly and had expressed the White House views—that the senators were now willing to take the blame as politicians have done from the beginning of time on the theory that the king is always right.

This destroyed the possibility of the normal Roosevelt approach in handling newspaper men.

Considering the difficulties, Franklin Roosevelt did an excellent job. He forced out to the public what he wanted out, but he was obviously fencing, obviously at high tension. Yet he never lost his temper.

BANKING CONTROL

By LESLIE C. McFALL
New Jersey Banker.

A GRAVE problem today is whether the public or political parties shall control the banks of America. Do we want the credit of this country to be controlled and dispersed for whatever the administration of today or tomorrow considers desirable, through the political control contemplated in the banking act of 1935?

Silence and concealment do not win restraint. The real reform remains elusive. The idealists would disperse increasing charity with other people's money. The government still borrows tomorrow's savings for today's expenses. Continued long enough, this means inflation and further devaluation. We must fight for sound and constructive action in congress in hope of stabilizing our monetary system so that business may go forward. The great problem before the country is the unwillingness of government, national, state and municipal, to live within their means. If necessary, leadership should be undertaken by the banks. Our present taxing and revenue system is surely leading to chaos and contention.

FLIM PROPAGANDA

By JAMES W. GERRARD
Chairman, Finance Committee, Democratic Party.

THE motion picture is one of the most powerful instruments of propaganda in the world. At this moment when we face the perils of inflation, public opinion might be turned by pictures showing the Germany of 1923, when the mark was devalued and people with a million marks could not buy a sandwich.

They could show today that stabilization is the one thing needed to establish credit, and that the United States is anxious to stabilize currency, while it is England who refuses to stabilize it.

Then, when you hear talk of sharing wealth and destroying capitalism, bring your propaganda guns to bear. What is capitalism but the right to be thrifty and enjoy the savings of your thrift and your initiative?

Use the motion picture to show that the United States of America still is the land of boundless opportunity.

1936 AND 1937

Czechoslovakian Foreign Minister.

NINETEEN hundred and thirty-six and 1937 will be the critical years. If we pass safely through these next two years, peace in eastern Europe is guaranteed for a long period.

New forces such as national socialism in Germany convinced me the Soviet union should be in the League, and I think Germany should have stayed in. The danger has been augmented recently by economic developments.

It is my idea that the League of Nations is one of the greatest forces in maintaining equilibrium in Europe. I believe we must have collective security agreements either in the League of Nations or regionally with as many nations as possible participating.

SAFETY IN FLYING

By DONALD DOUGLAS
American Aircraft Maker.

STATISTICS show that the foremost cause of accidents is still the forced landing. The multi-engine airplane capable of flying with one or more engines not operating is the direct answer to the dangers of engine failure.

It is quite apparent that for an airplane incapable of flying with one engine dead the risk increases with the numbers of engines installed. Therefore it is not desirable that an airplane be multi-engine unless it can maintain altitude over any portion of the air-line with at least one engine dead. Furthermore, the risk increases with the number of remaining engines needed to maintain the required altitude.

RESOURCES OF CANADA

By LOUIE TWEEDSMUIR
Governor-General Designate of Canada.

A COUNTRY may have immense and undeveloped resources, but they do not become wealth until and unless they are related to the demands and uses of the rest of the world. A fresh economic and social mechanism has to be created and new countries are in difficulty as compared with older ones—they have had less experience in this kind of creation and have to improvise in a brief time the machinery that old lands may have already constructed at leisure.

PIGS IS NOT PIGS

By DR. JOHN ANDREW HOLMES
Clergyman, Writer, Lecturer.

IF YOU had the necessary capital, the government would pay you to not raise pigs, and if you had been on relief, you could be employed on public works, but if a young man graduates tomorrow with neither poverty nor riches, perhaps I can give him no better counsel than this: If you can find a girl with a steady job, kneel at her feet and tell her frankly and with real emotion that you cannot live without her.

"WREATH DESIGN" FOR CHAIR BACK

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK

Your grandmother crocheted chair backs, and now this generation is doing the same thing. Chair backs and arm rests are strictly modern. When you enter a room the chair with crocheted set attracts your attention first. It is distinctive and really looks good. The wreath shown above is made in the large flat stitch; shows up more lay and the work is completed in less time. Other designs in chair backs have been shown in past editions, and judging from the response for directions how to make them we feel sure this design will bring equally large requests. The home needle-workers know what to make to improve home decorations.

Instructions and block and white diagram how to make this set will be mailed upon receipt of 10c. If you want the complete package No. 2565 containing sufficient cream Mountain Craft cotton, crochet hook, directions and diagram, send this department 40c and you will receive it by mail.

THE NEW FIRESTONE GROUND GRIP TIRE WILL ENABLE YOU TO USE YOUR CAR, TRUCK AND TRACTOR IN ALL KINDS OF WEATHER

THE body of this tire is built with patented Gum-Dipped Cords, giving it extra strength and greater flexing ability without creating heat, the greatest enemy of tire life.

The extra-heavy super traction tread on this tire is scientifically designed to prevent the bumpiness on smooth roads that is so objectionable in other tires designed for traction in soft ground. This heavy self-cleaning tread, required to withstand unusual pulling traction and strains, is securely locked to the cord body by Firestone's patented construction of two extra Gum-Dipped cord layers under the tread.

These new and unusually effective Firestone super traction tires enable you to operate your tractors, trucks and passenger cars for all kinds of farm work and over ground and roads that could not be traveled with ordinary tires, even equipped with chains.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

DANNY IS GLAD HIS TAIL IS SHORT

MANY, many times, Danny Meadow Mouse had envied his cousin, Whitefoot the Woodmouse. Nibbles the Jumping Mouse, and Nibbler the House Mouse, because of their long tails. It used to seem to him that Old Mother Nature had been very unfair in giving him such a homely, short, stubby tail. If there was any one thing he would have had if he could, it would have been a long tail. The truth is, Danny used to be ashamed of that short tail.

But he isn't any more. No, sir, Danny Meadow Mouse wouldn't have that tail of his any different now if he could. He has learned one of life's great lessons, which is that those things which sometimes seem the least to be desired are the greatest blessings. He learned it that night when he played hide and seek with Buster Bear, deep in the Green Forest.

Buster Bear is a very clever fellow. There are few who use their wits as

Danny would have been caught. As it was, Buster's big paw came down on the tip end only, and when Danny jumped, as of course he did, his tail slipped right out from under. With a pitiful little squeak of fear Danny started over to another tree and whisked around behind that. Kew

MINUTE MAKE-UPS

"Never, Never Again," thought Danny, "Will I Envy Anyone a Long Tail."

Buster uses his. It didn't take him long to realize that never in the world would he be able to catch Danny Meadow Mouse by simply chasing him round and round the trunk of that tree. As soon as he did realize it he stopped and set up to think. Now, while that tree was big, it wasn't so big that Buster couldn't reach quite half way round it, for Buster has a long reach. An idea came to him and his little eyes snapped and he grinned wickedly. "I'll give that Mouse a surprise," thought he.

So Buster stole softly close up to the tree on the other side of which poor little Danny Meadow Mouse crouched, wondering what would happen next. Very softly and carefully Buster reached around the tree with one big paw and brought it down swiftly. It came down right on the very tip end of Danny's little short tail. Had that tail been an inch longer,

BLUE-RIBBON BABY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

BLUE-RIBBON BABY, with stars in your eyes,

You are reward enough! You are Life's prize!

Some have a cat with a high pedigree; Others have dogs that are noble to see. The loveliest flowers gained awards at the fair,

And even a pumpkin wore blue with an air!

Blue-ribbon horses ran races and won; Cattle and hogs gained a place in the sun.

All we are proud of in this gorgeous state, We saw as we entered the fair's swing-ling gate.

I, who enjoyed it, looked forward to see The baby who stayed home and waited for me.

Blue-ribbon Baby, I never could win A greater reward than my days, which begin With a baby's blue gaze, and the touch of small hands.

And the thousand sweet nothings my heart understands, Blue-ribbon Baby, with stars in your eyes, then, in the midst of his fright, he was thankful to Old Mother Nature for having given him that short tail. Its shortness was all that had saved his life and he knew it.

You are reward enough! You are Life's prize!

"Never, never again," thought Danny, "will I envy anyone a long tail. Cousin Whitefoot's tail may be handsomer than mine, but if Cousin Whitefoot had been in my place he would be right in Buster Bear's stomach this very minute, and it would have been all because of his long tail."

Then Danny began to look about him hurriedly in the hope of finding a hiding place, for Buster Bear had seen where Danny had gone and was coming to try that same trick over again.

PICNIC MEALS

OPEN-AIR meals are in order now until the snow flies. These picnic meals may be of the simplest, but be sure that there is plenty of whatever it is, for there is nothing that encourages appetite like a good long walk or ride in the fresh air.

The perfect picnic always supposes a fire, where things can be heated or cooked, and there are few Scouts or Campfire girls who cannot prepare one in a short time. The building of a fireplace to roast the potatoes or corn and boil the water for the frankfurters is an accomplishment that many of the youth of today take as a matter of course.

If the fire is to be made on the beach, a trench is dug to make a fire-box. Then the true sportsman will see that every bit of debris and all embers are burned and buried before leaving the campfire.

One may cook bacon on sticks,

Familiar Sights for Old Timers

MEMBERS of the Battle Creek Three-Quarters of a Century Club, each of whom is over seventy-five years of age, revived familiar scenes of their youth when they made a pilgrimage to Henry Ford's old-time Greenfield village. Such things as a tin-type shop, hansom cabs and other historic sights carried the old folks back 50 years. These women were delighted to find a replica of the old-time general store, and enjoyed a shopping tour.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a boy twelve years old, and am in the ninth grade in school. In my English lesson for next week I must write an essay in which I have to use three words, meaning the direct opposite to the following three words: "Misery," "Sorrow," and "Woe." I know the opposite to "misery" is "happiness," and I know the opposite to "sorrow" is "joy," but the other word sticks me. Will you please tell me the opposite to "woe"?

DICK SHONARY.

Answer: I am surprised, a boy of your age, doesn't know that the opposite to "woe" is "glad-dap."

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Would you be kind enough to tell me the best way to remove paint?

Yours truly,

I. STAINESBY.

Answer: Sit on it.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Will you kindly settle a dispute for us? In our town there is a strike on the trolley car line and the cars are being run by incompetent men, with the result there have been several accidents. What we want to know is this: "In case of an accident, what is the first duty of the conductor and the motorman?"

Truly yours,

VIOLET RAYS.

Answer: In case of an accident the first duty of the conductor and the motorman is to blame it on each other.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

After a wedding ceremony the minister generally says: "I now pronounce you 'one'." My mother always says that she and papa are "two." How does she make that out?

Truly yours,

AMOS

LESSON TEXT—Amos 7:1-17. GOLDEN TEXT—But let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream—Amos 5:24. PRIMARY TOPIC—A Hero Preacher. JUNIOR TOPIC—When God Needed a Prophet. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Prophet for the Right. YOUTH TOPIC—AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Faithful Love and Our Great Obedience.

Amos was a herdsman called of God to be a prophet. A prophet is one who speaks forth the message of God. He converts the people of their sins, pleads for them to get right with God. The only effective way to convert wrong souls is to bring the people into right relation with God.

I. The Call of Amos (7:1).

He was a herdsman, and a seer of visions from 1744 B.C. He was not a prophet by profession, because he was not trained in the prophetic office.

II. To Whom Amos Was Sent (7:1).

Though he was from Judah, his ministry was to be primarily to Israel.

III. Amos' Message.

1. Sin denounced (2:6-8; 6:1-6).

a. Avaricious greed (2:6-8).

(1) Sold the righteous for silver (v. 6). The judge, for a bribe of silver, declared the innocent to be guilty.

(2) Sold the poor for a pair of shoes (v. 9). It doubtless referred to the practice of selling into slavery the debtor who could not pay for a pair of shoes which he had been sold on credit.

(3) Pants after the dust of the earth (v. 7). So avaricious had these men become that they even grasped after the earth which the downtrodden poor cast upon their head in their mourning because of their misery.

(4) Turned aside the way of the meek (v. 7). These grasping rich men turned aside the meek, that is, those who did not stand up for their rights. (5) Licentiousness (v. 7). So notorious were the immorality practices that they were even guilty of incestuous prostitution. How adequately this pictures the licentiousness of our present age.

h. Reckless security (6:1-3). They closed their eyes to the approaching judgment predicted by the prophet.

c. Luxury (6:4-6). Their luxury expressed itself in:

(1) Extravagant furniture. They had beds of ivory, which means, doubtless, wood inlaid with ivory.

(2) Laziness (v. 4). Many streched themselves on their couches, thus living lives of indolence.

(3) Feasted on delicacies (v. 4). They bought what they desired, regardless of its cost.

(4) Adorned their feasts with music (v. 5). They sang idle songs, even inventing musical instruments for this purpose.

(5) They drank wine (v. 6). They drank from bowls, indicating excessive drinking.

i. They failed to grieve for Joseph. Many are today indulging in luxury, entirely indifferent to the crying needs of others.

2. The remedy proposed (5:4-9). The prophet called upon them to return to God. The time to repent is while divine judgment is stayed. In their turning to God they were to renounce:

a. Idolatry (vv. 5, 6). They were to turn away from the places of idolatry—Bethel, Gilgal, and Beersheba.

b. Seeking to pervert judgment (v. 7). Turning judgment to wormwood implies the bitterness of the perversity of judgment to the injured.

c. Seeking to dethrone righteousness (v. 7). "Leaving off righteousness" is thought to mean that night-cousness was allowed to take its place.

IV. Interceded for the People (7:1-9). The prophet stands here not merely as the proclaimer of judgment, but as the intercessor for the people.

V. Opposed by Amaziah the Priest (7:10-17).

1. Message sent to Jeroboam (vv. 10, 11). The priest sought to hinder the prophet by informing the king of the judgment which Amos proclaimed.

2. He attempted to silence the prophet (vv. 12, 13).

3. The prophet's bold reply (vv. 14, 17).

a. He declared that he had received his commission from God directly (vv. 14, 15). The one who has heard the call of God must be faithful in the declaration of his message even though opposed by ecclesiastical and political leaders.

b. Doom pronounced (vv. 16, 17). He set forth the shame and distress of the Babylonian captivity, which came upon them because of their unfaithfulness to God.

An Overwhelming Thought

How could we bear that overwhelming thought "Thou knowest"—the thought that there is certainly somewhere, unless also we had the conviction warm at our hearts, "Thou lovest"—the certainty that the deepest certainty of all is the love of him who orders all.—W. Charles.

STEEL INDUSTRY SHIFTS

The geographic center of light capacity of the steel industry in the United States is in Crawford county, Ohio, north and west of the town of Crestline, 170 miles west of Pittsburgh, according to a calculation made by the American Iron and Steel Institute. Crestline has only two small iron foundries.

The great concentration of capacity in Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio is balanced by the capacity on the Pacific coast, some 2,500 miles westward, and by the mills in the Chicago district.

Since 1874, the earliest year for which the institute finds records available, the center of the steel industry has moved steadily toward the west. Sixty years ago it was 30 miles northwest of Harrisburg, Pa.—Kansas City Star.

THE SEEDS OF PROGRESS

The worthy progress, one from efforts of the individual, can be made.

The farmer is learning this truth. The government farm relief program which has been a wonderful help in the present emergency was adopted to meet the needs of representative farm organizations.

Not content with producing upon government favors, organized groups of farmers are doing what can be done through their own work, their own thought, their own tenacity.

During the depression real and permanent farm progress has been made by farmer-owned, farmer-controlled cooperative marketing associations.

These associations have gained in membership. They have made striking progress in trying to balance supply and demand, and in forwarding more scientific production methods. They have disseminated information that individual farmers were not in a position to obtain. Result: A start toward farm recovery.

It has long been said that self help is the best help. It is likewise the only kind of help that amounts to anything in the long run.

Keep Turkeys Growing

In advising turkey raisers to feed well, Dr. J. Holmes Martin, head of the poultry department at the Kentucky agricultural experiment station, points out that it takes only 4 pounds of feed to produce a pound of turkey meat, which means that a 10 pound young turkey tom has required 40 pounds of feed which should not cost more than 25c a pound. As a matter of fact, he says, a 10 pound turkey 6 months old has not eaten any more than an 8 pound chicken.

During the first month of its life, a young turkey gains at the rate of 1 pound for each 2 pounds of feed. During the second month it requires 1 pound and during the third month 1 pound of feed to add a pound of weight. Its feed requirement continues to increase until the last month before Thanksgiving or Christmas it may take 7 pounds of feed to make another pound of weight.

The importance of a balanced ration is stressed by Dr. Martin. The proper mash can be made of the simple ingredients of corn, middlings, ground corn, ground oats or barley, and meat scrap, with the 1 percent salt put into all poultry mashes. This mash can be fed in the form of a mash or in the form of a feed.

Many successful poultry raisers keep a mash and grain before turkeys. As the birds grow older they eat more grain, but always they apparently know how to balance their consumption of mash and grain.

Wheat Payments for Kentucky $285,000

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

Chapter XVI

Impressive as are the underground passages, it is the cave deposits which make the place and give the real beauty to it. The commercial success of a cave is largely determined by the attractiveness of its deposits, or, as they are referred to, formations. It is much to be regretted that in the case of many caves much of the attractive features have been lost through the efforts of souvenir hunters and marauders. Man can destroy in a few seconds what nature has taken centuries to form. And in the case of some passages in Mammoth Cave, much beauty has been lost through the early use of the oil torch resulting in a sootling of the walls.

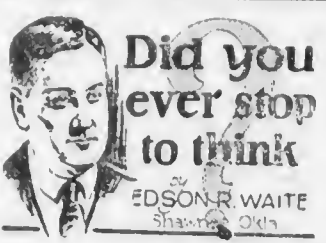

While the usual commercial trip has great things to offer, should the chance come your way, take a trip thru the side passages not commercialized, because of size or difficulty of access. You will be leaving all the artificial behind and have the experience few are privileged to get.

The deposits are normally of two kinds, limestone, which is the more usual, and gypsum. The latter is not present in all caves, and only in the deer parks of those caves where it does occur.

First the limestone deposits. From water dissolved out and out on these passages. Nature then turned around to heal her wounds. Water seeping thru the roof and evaporating leaves behind the limestone it has dissolved from the rock thru which it has passed above, common in the form of icicle-like forms called stalactites. These grow as water seeps down thru the hollow center to the drip, and along the outside surface, thus growing by additions to the lower tip and the addition of layers externally. The water which does not evaporate falls to the floor and a rounded deposit, more massive than the stalactite, grows up from below. These are the stalagmites, and for every stalactite there is a stalagmite above feeding it with a succession of drops of water. Should a stalactite break off, the growth of the stalagmite below is terminated. With continued growth of the pillars are formed when they meet. If the deposit is pure limestone it is white. Atmosphere oxidizing the iron in it turns it brown and this brown color appears during periods of low growth when temporarily the water has stopped dripping.

With such deposits growing on the ceiling, walls, and floors, a great variety of forms appear, some of them well described by the names given to them by cave guides.

Just how rapidly these formations grow it would be difficult to say. It is quite a variable matter. In one cave in Indiana a name written on the limestone surface several decades ago has since been covered with a thin, transparent sheet of limestone. A wire in Mammoth Cave has been catching drippings from the ceiling and shows a well developed crust of limestone. There are several places where a cup or shallow vessel set under a drip has become covered with cave oysters.

Governor David Sholtz of Florida

There is no citizen of city, state, or nation who should enjoy the opportunity of making a living without in some way giving just a little of him or herself in worth while public service.

The principle is an old one, but it is one upon which our nation and its political subdivisions are laid will never reach a greater measure to perfection until this is accomplished.

Such service must, naturally, come with the full free will of the giver and with the greatest possible portion of cooperation between the giver and the political unit that is the receiver. In addition, a way must be found to guarantee cooperation and coordination of effort between all persons striving for the success of government.

"Every nation in the world has seen at one time or another, the gross errors and disadvantages that can and do result when the service of its component units and its workers is based on selfishness and the desire for individual gain. This principle of operation has not and cannot be successful in accomplishing one of the fundamental aims of a democracy—providing the greatest good for the greatest number of people.

"Men and women who enter into public life from motive purely selfish realize that due to the manner in which they work destruction to any proposal for general betterment. They hesitate not to bring their problems and their plans, as well as their criticism of the plans of others, into the open for frank, unbiased discussion and criticism. They know that sniping over faulted slights is one of the most certain destroyers of progress, and that selfishness is a rise relative to the absolute ruin of all system of democratic government."

Mr. and Mrs. J. Blaine Nickell and family are spending the week with relatives in Lexington.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

Some time ago a banker friend said to the writer, "Dr. Jones, why is it so many men criticize evangelists and Christian workers? Why is it they are so often misrepresented and slandered?" That friend asked an important question and I will give you my answer to him. "You have a bank. The devil is not against your bank one way or the other. There is a store up the street and the devil is neither a friend nor an enemy of that store. He is not interested. You go get a sign and put it out in front of your bank and say, 'This bank stands unqualifiedly for the Word of God. It is a Christian institution. It believes the Bible from cover to cover. It believes that God created man in His own image and man fell into sin. It believes that Jesus Christ died on the cross shedding His blood for the redemption of a lost world. This bank stands unqualifiedly for the old-time religion and the absolute authority of the Bible.' Put out that sign and you will make the devil angry and he will be against your bank."

As soon as Jesus Christ was born the devil tried to kill Him. The religiousists of His day hated Him wherever He went. He was flung about. They said He was no friend to Caesar. They spat on Him. They put a crown of thorns on His brow. They nailed Him to the cross. His opposition was nothing but satanic opposition. The devil was against Him. John the Baptist got his head cut off because he told the truth. The apostle Paul was persecuted because many of the Jews of his day wanted the world to believe Jesus Christ was dead. Paul told them that He was not dead, that He had met Him on the Damascus road. The early church was persecuted because Christians wouldn't compromise. Martin Luther, John Knox, John Wesley, Dwight L. Moody, and every great uncompromising preacher in the world has been flung about and slandered because of the minister about whom you have never heard a slander. "Who be unto you when all men speak well of you?" If you live godly you will suffer persecution.

SMALL NEED YET TO WORRY ABOUT ICE RECESSION

It appears that our refrigerating plant is breaking down. The matter of the receding polar ice cap has for a long time engaged the attention of scientists. With the recent times the recession of the cap has been of such proportions that evidence of it has been observed within the span of only a few decades.

For instance, the Russian Arctic expert, N. G. Datsky, in re-examining areas surveyed 40 years before, found that in Siberia, where his predecessor, Professor Shrenk, found eternal frost at the depth of two meters, there was now no frost at any depth, not even in the marshes. In other localities, where Professor Shrenk found only shrubless tundra, Mr. Datsky saw new growths of timber.

Only recently, Prof. R. T. Balknap of the University of Michigan came upon a pyramid of rocks and a note originally placed at the foot of the Cornell glacier by the late Professor Farr. The note was dated 1896. In the time intervening, the glacier had moved back three-quarters of a mile from the marker.

R. F. Griggs of the University of Washington tells us that in the Alaskan tundra country the forest line is advancing at the rate of a mile a century. Trees are now growing on land which had been barren for 100,000 years.

If this keeps on, you say, Hudson bay will eventually become a sub-tropical body of water. Well, what of it? It has been several times before, and, if geological evidence is anything to draw conclusions from, it will be again.

According to W. J. Humphries of the United States weather bureau, if all the ice of the polar caps melted, the ocean level would be raised 151 feet! And that's something else to try out on the slide rule.—Earl Chaplin in Forum and Century.

The richest hare in the world is running wild somewhere near Hialeah, in the Rhineland. Round its neck is a handkerchief containing about $400 in notes. Meantime a peasant woman is weeping out her heart for trying to strangle a hare in a trap with an improvised belt concealing her worldly possessions and succeeding only in setting the animal free.

There are so many people in Morgan county that I just cannot get to it and talk over matters which the next representative from Morgan county will have an opportunity to help you out.

1. I am therefore having printed some principles to which I expect to devote especial attention if again elected your representative.

2. I have voted against the sales tax on three separate occasions and will continue to vote against it in all forms. I will assist in an effort to reduce state expenses to the state's income. If that is impossible without the levying of further taxes a profligate mix on whisky and a graduated tax on incomes should furnish the funds necessary.

3. I fought for 26 years in the public schools and know the school needs of Morgan county. Our local taxes are woefully inadequate for our school needs. And as people are demanding better schools I feel that, if possible, our state per capita appropriation should be $15. The equalization payment due Kentucky teachers shall be provided for in a constitutional way, as I know it can be.

4. Tax on small homes and farms must be kept low, reduced if possible out taxes on other real estate, including coal lands, oil and gas lands, oil and gas lines, railroads, factories, stilleries, and other valuable and wealth producing real estate shall be restored to its former rate of taxation.

5. I am in favor of the repeal of the present dog tax law, but I find it is hard to repeal a law which is wanted to a large section of the state. I will therefore try to have the law amended so as to allow every horseholder one dog tax free.

6. I am a member of "The Old Age Pension Association," and will endeavor to see that Kentucky is ready to take advantage of any federal legislation on this important matter.

7. I am now, as I have always been, for good roads to all sections of our county, and believe that the quickest way to a good road system is for the state highway department to take over the whole road system, including all the public roads of the counties. This would do away with the supposed free labor on roads and get all roads into a system and in line for state improvement and maintenance.

8. I am sorry that I cannot talk to every voter personally. A representative has a big job. A job to help manage the biggest business in Kentucky. A job which hits directly every man's pocketbook and his social security. I have faithfully performed this duty for you before and I am determined to be even more zealous in the performance of the arduous duties which await.

If you feel that I have been faithful I will be appreciative of your support at the primary election on August 3.
